WASHINGTON, June 18.—Howing privilege more brazenly than any other member of Congress in opposing aid to education. Not only has Gwinn sent out 2,250 copies of his speeches against education, public housing, rent control, etc., but this abuse of his free mailing privilege cost the taxpayers — through the post office department — $27,000.

In addition the taxpayers had to pay $1,755 for stuffing the envelopes with Gwinn's speeches. Only thing that this propaganda barrage cost Gwinn was the bare cost of $7,828.07 for the government's printing office for reprinting the speeches.

The New York congressman paid this by personal check but refused to say where he got the money — except that it came from friends. Some of these friends in the past have been the Foundation for Economic Education and the Committee for Constitutional Government which in turn are financed by the Mellon interests; the du Ponts, Republic Steel, U. S. Steel, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Texas Oil, and the Joe Pew Sun oil interests.

In other words, it looks as if General Eisenhower, who is supposed to be an expert on higher education, fell into a trap set for him by a spokesman of the anti-education lobby.

Navy General

It is all the more inconceivable that Ike should have answered Gwinn because the congressman has written a book called "Fifth Avenue to Farm" in which he made such amazing statements as:

"A compulsory system of public education cannot be expected to maintain a high civilization. The feeble minded remain at home (on the farm) — those who are not feeble minded enough to be institutionalized — the weak minded and the shallow minded. The indolent, weak willed and unimaginative remain around home. So do the diseased, the fearful and the more timid."

In writing to Congressman Gwinn, Eisenhower apparently didn't entirely understand what the federal aid to education was all about, for he ignored the fact that the education bill just passed by the Senate does not in any way permit control of education by the federal government. It helps individual states through federal funds, with no control by the government over how those funds are to be used in each state.

Congressional leaders also point out that Eisenhower let himself in for a system whereby a premium would be placed on states which failed to tax themselves. He proposed federal money for states which failed to tax themselves but no federal money for states which taxed themselves sufficiently to have adequate education.

Jesse James and Truman

One of President Truman's secret heroes is the notorious railroad bandit and Robin Hood of the early west—Jesse James. What's more, the President is convinced that the whole rootin' shootin' James family were Democrats.

So confessed President Truman the other day to two youthful visitors, Buster McClain of Crawford, Alabama, and Blevyn Hathcock of Oakboro, North Carolina, who were invited to the White House after winning a contest as shining examples of rural youth.

The President greeted them cordially and spoke of their home states. Not wanting to be outdone in his knowledge of states, Buster McClain of Alabama spoke up about the President's home state.

"The main thing I know about Missouri," he said, "is that you and Jesse James came from there. I have read a lot about both of you, and I admire both of you."

"A lot of people," quipped the President, "haven't liked either one of us."

Then the President admitted that he too, had a secret admiration for Jesse James. In fact, Jesse's uncle had been a leading politician and the whole family had been "big Democrats," the President said.

Truman explained that the countryside where the James family lived were bitterly divided over the presidential election of 1824, and broke off into two counties. The county dominated by the Republicans was named after Henry Clay, the G. O. P. candidate. The other county was named after Andrew Jackson, the Democratic candidate. The James family came within the boundaries of Clay county, but the James brothers remained loyal to the Democratic party.

"The James boys were pushed so hard they began to fight back," added Truman, in explaining how they became outlaws.

FDR, Jr.

When House Leader John McCormack of Massachusetts, acting speaker in the absence of Sam Rayburn, swore in FDR, Jr., as the new congressman from New York's 20th district, he declared:

"This brings back pleasant memories. I was acting speaker the last time your father addressed Congress, following the Yalta conference. I also presided and introduced your father the last time he addressed a political rally, in the window of the 1944 campaign in Boston."

"That's very interesting" grinned young Roosevelt. "I hope you bring me good luck."

Note — Photographers tried to get a picture of Roosevelt reading Cannon's rules of procedure, but he begged off. "That's part of my homework after office hours," he said.

The Diplomatic Pouch

Mark Ethridge, American representative on the Palestine commission, has decided to retire from diplomacy and go back to publishing the Louisville Courier-Journal. The British have been quietly shipping jet fighters to the Egyptian government. Ambassador Stanton Griffis, Cairo warns of a possible revolt against the Egyptian government. Griffis says Egyptian hotheads are gathering big quantities of arms and ammunition. The revolutionists are part of an army clique that wants to resume the war against the Jews. Persecution of Jews behind the iron curtain continues. Hungarian Jews are now taxed $500 for "the privilege of migrating out of Hungary to Palestine."

Still Try To Have Hospital

Plans Temporarily Stymied For It At Old Camp Crowder

JEFFERSON CITY, June 18.—(AP)—Gov. Forrest Smith disclosed Friday his plan to use part of the Camp Crowder for a senile hospital has been stymied by a legal technicality.

He announced his legal secretary, Tyre W. Burton, will go to Washington tomorrow and try to work out a solution with the War Assets Administration.

Here's the situation: Last session the legislature authorized the University of Missouri board of curators to take over part of the wartime camp and return it into a vocational school.

The curators took title to about 2,000 acres last Dec. 28.

Since then the governor has proposed that part of the camp also be used to house senile patients who are crowding state hospitals. They are not active mental cases, but need only custodial care. Five bills to permit this are pending in the Senate committee on health and welfare.

The catch is that in the War Assets Administration deed is a clause saying the property must be used by the state only for a vocational school and "for no other purpose."

The governor said he talked with WAA officials in Washington by telephone today and they assured him the deed could be modified. They said they would make "possible for Missouri to use the property for either school or health purposes, Smith reported."

Burton will confer with them about the change.

Meanwhile the vocational school has not been started and no funds have been appropriated for it.

Stay Of Execution In George Neff Case

TOPEKA, Kas., June 18.—(AP)—The Kansas supreme court Friday granted a stay of execution in the case of George Neff, 48-year-old Perth, Kas., farmer, under life sentence for the murder of his brother-in-law, Kenneth Wynn.

Harold Goodwin, Wichita attorney for Neff, sought the stay of execution today at the same time he filed an appeal from the judgment in the case and from a ruling denying a new trial.

The high court directed that

Neff remain in the custody of the Sumner county sheriff and not be transferred to the state penitentiary until further word from the supreme court.

Don May Keep Television Set

LOS ANGELES, June 18—(AP)—Television was one of the main factors contributing to the breakup of radio announcer Don Wilson's marriage to Mrs. Marjorie Wilson, Polish beauty, she testified Friday in winning a divorce. "He just wanted to sit home and look at television and not go out any place," she told Superior Judge Alfred L. Bartlett. She also said that Wilson, Jack Benny's announcer, called her a "stupid Pole." The judge said he believed Mrs. Wilson had proved a case of cruelty "but I doubt if looking at television is cruelty." "Well," quipped her lawyer, Roger Marchetti, "some of the program are pretty murderous." The couple divides $110,000 worth of community property and Don keeps his television set.

Raise In Pensions To The Blind

JEFFERSON CITY, June 18—(AP)—A bill to raise Missouri's blind pensions from $35 to $40 a month was signed by Gov. Forrest Smith Friday. It goes into effect immediately.

Alben W. Barkley, at 71, Is Popular Social Figure

By DOUGLAS LARSEN

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Vice President Alben W. Barkley is now the most sought after man in town.

At the age of 71 he set a new record by being the oldest man ever to be sworn into the job. But you'd never guess he held the age title in view of the records he's been setting since.

There are no official figures, but experts agree that in the few months he has been in office Barkley has probably crowned more beauty queens, awarded more medals, launched more drives, been photographed with more movie stars and been guest of honor at more affairs than any previous V. P. in a full term. His unflagging good nature and sunny wit have made him the town's favorite guest.

He averages between 40 and 50 invitations a day to attend private parties and dinners. And he gets almost that many requests to appear at public functions. He accepts as many of these demands on his time as he is able to, but insists on keeping a few evenings a week free for some quiet reading in his modest Georgetown apartment.

Barkley has added new meaning to the tradition at the Capitol that any member of Congress can walk into the vice-president's office without being announced. It's a hangout for both Republican and Democratic members, as well as being the clearing house for good jokes.

Barkley also manages to spend more time presiding over the Senate than any other Constitutional assignment. He is considered one of the best parliamentarians who's ever presided over that deliberative body, thanks to his many years as a senator and a scholarly interest in the subject.

The supreme object of pride in his office is the large replica of the seal of his office. By presidential proclamation he has become the first vice-president in history to have the seal. It is similar to the official U. S. seal and has the eagle's head turned in the direction of the olive branch clutched in the claws, to symbolize peace, rather than in the direction of the arrow, symbolizing war.

Another record he can probably claim is that of receiving more mail than any previous vice-president. Much of his correspondence comes from persons who still think he is the senior senator from Kentucky. The rest comes from all over the country asking for his advice, help or presence at some party or ceremony.

Traffic Expert Raps Cable Car

By Al Ostrow
NEA Special Correspondent
SAN FRANCISCO (NEA)—The battle of the cable cars is raging all over again in San Francisco.

Are the picturesque little hill-climbers an integral part of the color and flavor of the cosmopolitan city by the Golden Gate? Or are they not a costly, hazardous traffic menace?

The argument has been simmering for decades. It has just come to a boil again after the city report of a traffic expert, hired to make a $20,000 survey of the city's transit system.

Arthur C. Jenkins, consulting engineer, who revamped the Los Angeles mass transportation lines, branded the cable cars "anti-qualified" and "a nuisance."

"The only value of the cable cars in the present world of mass passenger transportation," he declared, "is for museum purposes. They would serve well as a model line in Golden Gate Park, or for a few blocks to Cal Tower, as a means of preserving a remnant of this novel type of transportation."

The city streets of San Francisco, however, are no place for a museum piece.

"The cable cars, he said, were designed for an era when the only other traffic vehicles were horse drawn, and now, 'the last word in lack of safety devices.'"

Anticipating the protests of sentimentalists, who succeeded in writing a clause into the city charter that the cable cars must be preserved, the engineer declared there was no room logical reason to keep the cable cars in regular service" than to operate the Pony Express as a historic link.

The transit report roused the defenders of the little "chickens." By plane and mail, they bombarded City Hall.

"The people have declared at the polls that they desire the continuance of the cable cars by a plurality of 171,000 to 51,000," asserted Mrs. Hans K. Kinsman, a devoted wife who headed a committee of clubwomen which led a successful drive to write preservation of the cables into the city charter. "We serve notice now that the decision of the people of San Francisco will be upheld."

Cable cars climbing Nob Hill and dropping down to North Beach and Fisherman's Wharf are one of the city's major tourist attractions, she declared.

1950 Campaign Cards Feature New Farm Program

By OVID A. MARINO

WASHINGTON, June 11. (AP)—The Truman administration has issued its 1950 campaign cards on the table. They feature a new agriculture and farm program in what promise to be a knockdown and drag-out battle for the farm vote.

The President's political lieutenant made his play in a bold and confident manner at a Democratic farm conference at Des Moines early this week.

Party leaders from a 10-state area attended the meeting. They went chiefly with the idea of learning more about the administration's controversial farm program and how to drum up support for it.

The farm vote has been more than a hot spread here since the Des Moines was the campaign headquarters of Mr. Truman and his aid. They are looking up to the end of the year in 1950.

The strategy of the administration party was clear. The strategy was to get a good idea of the farm vote. The strategy was to get a good idea of the farm vote.

Stypleffety is the keynote to being well-dressed and it is especially so when going on vacation. The fewer ruffles and frills you have—the less pressing you'll have to worry with in hotels. When planning your wardrobe, take into consideration everything there is a possibility you will do and pack your bag accordingly. If you are visiting in someone's home you can be the perfect guest by not asking to borrow items or always be washing and ironing. An abundant supply of Hanger that can be switched out quickly is important—the less time you have to spend keeping your clothes fresh—the more time for fun.

Leave Way Open For Seizure

Senator Thomas Gives Views On Modified Labor Act To The Senate

By Max Hall
WASHINGTON, June 17 (AP) — Senator Elbert Thomas (D-Utah) told a squabbling Senate Friday the Truman labor bill would leave the way open for plant seizure, injunctions, or whatever action would fit a given strike emergency.

Thomas spoke as the chamber considered the administration measure to repeal the Taft-Hartley act and return to a modified version of the old new deal Wagner act. A big point at issue is whether the new measure should say specifically, as does the Taft-Hartley law, that the President can seize plants or get injunctions to halt strikes imperiling the national welfare.

Thomas, chief sponsor of the administration bill, said that although it doesn't authorize seizure or injunctions it is "written in such a way" as not to limit the inherent powers of the President. Those powers, he said, clearly include seizing plants or getting injunctions in a national emergency.

Then the government clarified. Senator Pepper (D-Ia) also pleaded for the administration bill but took a sharply different approach. He urged its passage on the ground that it proposes neither seizure nor injunctions.

Pepper slashed bitterly at both those methods of stopping strikes. He attacked a 60-day seizure proposal by Senators Douglas (D-Ill) and Aiken (R-Vt) even more hotly than he attacked a proposal by Senator Taft (R-Ohio) to continue the explicit injunction authority of the Taft-Hartley act.

Douglas and Aiken both jumped to their feet. Pepper said "labor hates the injunction with all the bitterness of its painted memories of its long past." But he said to stop strikes by government seizure is even worse, because it also leads to injunctions against unions and at the same time is "obnoxious to management."

Pepper roared that he wanted to show the "kinship" of the Taft and Douglas proposals. Douglas flatly denied the similarity. He said seizure would not inevitably lead to injunctions, but in the "vast majority" of cases, when an industry was seized "the patriotism and good sense of the workers would lead them to go back to work."

Taft's retort to Pepper was that it was the Douglas-Aiken amendment and the administration bill which are alike. Taft said "The Douglas amendment, without mentioning it, gives the right of injunction. The Thomas bill, without mentioning it, probably gives the right of injunction. Then doesn't the senator think we ought to spell out the injunction and authorize it for a 60-day period?"

Pepper said no. Senator Ives (R-NY) jumped in to ask Pepper if he didn't think the Ives amendment is the best of all because "it is the only proposal that would meet national emergencies without in any way permitting the injunction."

The Ives plan would leave it up to Congress to legislate in each particular emergency — at a special session if necessary. Pepper said the Ives amendment looked better to him than anything except the administration bill.

KINGLY PRO AND CON—A couple of prospective voters in Brussels look over the field as the Belgian election campaign gets hot. Big issue is whether or not to permit the return of self-exiled King Leopold III, now in Switzerland. The Social Christian (Catholic) Party (center) favors him. Slaying Over A Fence And Dog

KANSAS CITY, June 18 (AP) — An argument Friday over a dog and a fence between two homes brought death to an aged woman and a shotgun wound to her 72-year-old neighbor.

Police said witnesses told them Frank Pash, 72, had fired a shotgun blast at his next door neighbor, Mrs. Mary Glad, 78, as she sat on a front porch chair. She died Friday night at General hospital.

Pash was found in a woodshed behind his home, with a shotgun wound in his head. Police said he had shot himself.

Neighborhood residents said Pash and Mrs. Glad had had a long-standing disagreement about two fences between their homes, and about Mrs. Glad's dog.

Pash recently had built a small wooden fence between a part of the boundary line between the two homes.

Mike Trilanyanovich told police he was working on a drain between his home and Mrs. Glad's. A part of the shot from the blast that killed Mrs. Glad struck near him, he said.

Pash also was taken to General hospital where a hold-order was placed against him by police.

Divorce Petitioned

Cat Weapon In Domestic Spat

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., June 18 (AP) — My husband hit me in the face with the family cat!

That statement, made when she was asked what had been the intemperately cruel about her husband's conduct won a divorce Friday for Mrs. Catherine Tichnor Comblor, petite blonde daughter of a former Dairen physician.

Mrs. Comblor told superior court Judge William J. Shea the cat was used as a weapon in a domestic spat. She was seated on her bed, she testified, when her husband tossed the feline in her face. Before she could free herself from the frightened animal, she was badly clawed and bitten, Mrs. Comblor said.

Her husband, Donald C. Comblor, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., did not contest the divorce.

Mrs. Comblor also was awarded custody of two-year-old son, Scott W.

Patrol Boat Goes Fishing With Radar To Hook Fishermen Violating Law

By NEA Service
SAN FRANCISCO (NEA)—Radar, which helped win the battle of freedom, is now hard at work in the battle of fish.

The Albacore, newest patrol boat of the California Fish and Game Commission, is using a radar set to detect violators of the state's fishing laws.

Specifically, the new equipment will aid the fight against commercial boats fishing inside the three-mile limit and those using a drag net in illegal waters.

Already, the presence of mysterious radar on the Albacore has thrown a scare into California fishermen. They seem to think it possesses powers even more potent than it actually does.

"There's a great deal of speculation going on among commercial fishermen in Northern California," says the patrol boat's skipper, Captain Ralph W. Dale, "over just what we can see on the Albacore's radar screen."

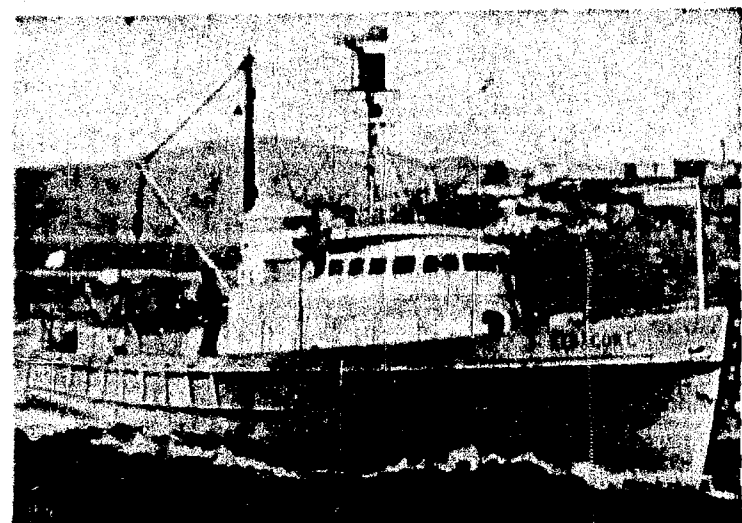

"There's talk along the wharves that we know just how many fish sometimes stayed in port a month, or more in bad weather.

The viewing screen is elaborated so that the radar operator—and every member of the crew except the cook—is an operator—can take dead reckoning. The little "blob" of light on the screen tells him whether a boat is a fisher or a coastwise tanker or an ocean-going vessel.

"Our boats are now much more effective," says Chief LaRue Chappell of the Commission's Bureau of Patrol and Law Enforcement, "especially in determining whether or not a boat is using a drag net within illegal waters. We can see whether the boats are moving or whether they are clustered within a certain area, which usually means the drag nets are out."

Poor enforcement of conservation laws has resulted in a depletion of fish along the Northern California coast. Where once a catch was spoken of in tons and could be made within an hour, now it takes perhaps four hours are aboard, or whether the legal limit of 500 pounds of crab per boat has been exceeded. Some of the men are sure that the very kinds of fish and size of catch can be seen as they are brought aboard, although we may be many miles away with fog and darkness making visibility zero."

Even though the Albacore's General Electric radar set can't do those things, it has proven a big help in the conservation fight. It enables the 83-foot boat to be out in any kind of weather, night and day. Previously, patrol boats to bring in a few hundred pounds.

Captain Dale thinks that the radar equipment will prevent violations, as well as result in the capture of violators. He adds that he would much rather prevent a violation of fishing regulations than catch an offender. With radar, he says, the Albacore will be able to move more quickly and surely.

The Commission, too, with an eye to the fall of fishing to fifth place in the state's industries, is interested primarily in conservation, not punishment.

One Man, Five Seconds And Splash

The conventional method of lowering a lifeboat on long ropes from davits over the side of a ship, in use for hundreds of years, requires several men and up to two minutes in time. But the U. S. Coast Guard has come up with a new idea, called the "Patent Lifeboat," that does the job in five seconds and with only one man at the engine to work the cable, left. The crane lowers a loaded boat to the water with a huge splash five seconds later, above.

The method, which is expected to revolutionize sea rescues, is being tested at the Coast Guard Reservation at Curtis Bay, Md.

Poles Ban Border-Line Swimming

NOWY SACS, Poland—(AP)—Borderline swimming is out in Poland—that is, along the Polish-Czech frontier.

Authorities say too many people are being drowned every summer in the turbulent waters of the Dunajec river. Portions of it form the boundary between Poland and Czechoslovakia.

The Nowy Sacz fire brigade now has declared "noswimming" along the entire course of the Dunajec except in a few spots especially designated.

Authorities also have prohibited the circulation of all unregistered barges and ferries used for the transport of passengers.

Good-Will Borrowing Pays Off
COPENHAGEN — (AP) — Ingvald Putrup, 40 year old farmer of Hukkeny on the Danish island of Moen, has been awarded $200 for owing a lot of people money but being in high spirits all the same.

When Niels Ovesen, a lawyer of the island's main town of Nykoe-bing, died a few years ago, it was disclosed that in his last will he had set an amount of money aside for a foundation, the interest of which should be paid to "a small-holder of Mors in considerable debt, but who has not lost his good humor."

The first amount of the foundation money has been paid to Mr. Putrup. He commented: "Now you see that good humor is more valuable than money."

William Elliott, cast as Frank Plummer, last of the Missouri outlaws in "The Last Bandit" seems to be captivated by Adrain Booth's feminine charm. "Coroner Creek" Epic Outdoor Color Film

A pulse-pounding Cinecolor Western epic that rips at the emotions with savage fury. "Coroner Creek" opens today at the Uptown Theatre, starring Randolph Scott as a light-fingered cowboy, and Marguerite Chapman as a beautiful daughter of the West. From the brass-knuckled Saturday Eve Post story of savage vengeance and frightened love by Luke Short, "Coroner Creek" brews more raw violence than most of its type. Co-hit at the Uptown is "Black Eagle," based on the story "The Passing of Black Eagles" by O. Henry and starring William Bishop and Virginia Patton.

Walter Cronkite, KMBC-KFRM Washington correspondent, was one of a select group of American journalists invited by the French government to commemorate the anniversary of the Normandy invasion. A former war correspondent, Cronkite covered the D-Day landing five years ago.

He re-visited the Normandy beachhead and other former battle scenes along the scarred French coast.

Interviewed American soldiers, talked with European laborers, farmers, business men. His literary included conferences with high government officials in Paris, Luxembourg, Frankfurt, Berlin and London. As a result of his trip, Cronkite's dynamic radio series has gained added impact.

Heard in the Kansas City area over KMBC and KFRM exclusively, his reports are featured over KMBC Sunday at 12:10 and 3:45 p.m.; over KFRM Sunday at 12:10 and 3:45 p.m. For a complete review of the week in Washington—as it affects you—he sure to listen to Walter Cronkite every Sunday.

This afternoon at 4:00 o'clock over KMBC, The Choralists offer a vocal salute to that vast throng of untiring heroes—American fathers—led by Eugene Lovell, the male chorus sings a medley of tunes appropriate for Father's Day.

The easy friendliness... the kind-hearted philosophy... the homespun common sense of Caroline Ellis has won her a standing invitation into the homes of countless midwesterners.

An excellent woman commentator, Caroline's radio career has been fabulous. She has created shows for two major networks, originated a successful fashion series, directed an effective radio sales campaign and spearheaded several outstanding crusades.

Her friendly personality, like June, is busting out all over. If you don't already number yourself among those listeners who regularly enjoy her morning visits, start tomorrow on "Happy Home" heard over KMBC and KFRM Monday through Friday at 9:30 a.m.

Tomorrow evening, in a spine-tlingling whodunit, Karl Swenson, CBS dramatic actor, is cast as Charles—an unscrupulous thief who plots to get control of his aunt's wealth.

Charles' delights in messing around with, especially at night. He is fearfully intrigued by the burial vault of one Marie, a woman with strange powers, who comes out of his crypt on a stormy wind-swept night—just as Mrs. Ferguson is staring out her bedroom window.

But Marie, the "Corpse Without a Conscience" proves not to be the perfect accomplice—on tomorrow's "Inner Sanctum" featured over KMBC at 10:30 p.m.

Football Players Lose Builght
 LOS ANGELES—(AP)—Natives were recently playing a football match on the outskirts of the city when a wild bull emerged from a nearby wood and charged the red-shirted players. In the ensuing panic, players, spectators and officials hurriedly scrambled up trees or anything which would take them out of the reach of the rushing horns. The bull, finding himself a sore master of the field, eventually kicked the only thing left in sight—the ball—and withdrew into the woods.

GET HOT, SON—A U. S. Air Force instructor, right, at the Fire Fighting and Rescue School in Sumter, S. C., urges a student to get in closer to the fire deliberately set off for training purposes. Old fuselages are set ablaze so the airmen can practice combating real plane fires.

Camp Meetings Were Eventful Occasions For The Pioneers

(By the State Historical Society of Missouri at Columbia, Floyd C. Shoemaker, Columbia)

It was before dawn when the men filed silently through the forest until they reached the designated spot. Without much talk they began to clear off two or three acres of land, their axes sounding through the forest. As the sun came up, they were cutting logs ten feet long and about one foot in diameter which they laid on cross logs to make seats.

One of the pioneers who had managed by hook or crook to get a foot-and-a-half dressed the bark and knots off the tops of the logs to make the seats as comfortable as possible. The men began to joke a little as the sun filtered down through the shady trees and each felt the excitement of the impending event—for Saturday people would come from far and wide for the campmeeting.

In front of the log seats they built a stand six or eight feet high and perhaps ten feet square for a speaker's platform. On either side of the stand they piled brush and dry logs to furnish light for the night meeting. Then they cleared off space for the wagons and for cooking, for a campmeeting brought everyone out, some who came only to spend a day and stayed a week.

Services began at 10:00. Preaching usually began at ten in the morning and if there were three preachers (a good campmeeting always had at least three) they divided their time so that one spoke in the forenoon, another in the afternoon, and the third at night. The pioneer preacher was a powerful man—strong of lung, strong of body, and a master promoter of his faith. While the people sang or shouted, he walked up and down, urging them to "join" the church.

By the time the campmeeting was in its second or third day it excelled any circus in interest. Sometimes the minister held his audience spellbound for two or three hours while scores dropped exhausted to the ground. "Exhorters" by the dozen would shout in unison, a young girl in the front row would get the "jerks," swishing her head back and forth in vigorous, rhythmic motion, an old pioneer from the river country would try to "shin it" up a tree to get as near to heaven as possible.

Sometimes the preacher would have to stop in his sermon, get down from his pulpit and help chase some drunken rowdies away. For bootleggers always hung around the campmeetings with their jugs and cups and many a scoffer was made overbold by another kind of spirits. Such a scoffer was liable to find himself tied hand and foot to a tree, the direct target of a venomous stream of words, calling on him to repent.

Exhausted by Zeal

Finally, exhausted by their zeal, the people retired to their wagons to sleep under the trees with a few men taking turns as guards over the horses. The guards were a necessity, for horse thieves, deaf to the spirit of camp meeting, found it an excellent place to ply their trade. The next morning after breakfast, the preaching was taken up again with renewed vigor.

Campmeetings were always held in the summer when the harvest was in and the pioneer farmers could take a breathing spell. They were a great benefit to these hardy souls, a break in the ordinary routine, an escape from drudgery and loneliness, and a real emotional lift to flagging souls. People who seldom saw a face outside their own family, found that "the visitin'" did almost as much good for the body as the preaching. While the women and children were the most easily swayed by the powerful oratory, by the end of the week there were few who hadn't "got religion." Thus when the camp broke up they went back to their homes with a fresh outlook on life.

Enlistees in Army, Airforce

Sgt. John R. Stacy, local recruiter, said that a number of young men, who recently finished high school, have become interested in the army as a career. The recruiter said there is still a vacancy in the regular army and a limited opening in the army air force.

Sgt. Stacy said married men may now enlist in the regular army if they are eligible to return in "grade four," and in the airforce, if they are eligible for grade 3 or higher.

The following have enlisted in the army or airforce, and were recruited from the local recruiting station in Sedalia:

Luther M. Beymer, 1501 South Missouri, who has 14 years previous military service, enlisted in the regular army for a period of three years, and was sent to Camp Chaffee, Ark.

George F. Gunder, Norman D. Hall and Morgan L. Koch, all of La Monte, were enlisted in the army airforce, and were sent to San Antonio, Tex., for 14 weeks basic training.

James Robert Simmons, 107 East Pettis street, enlisted in the regular army, and was sent to Camp Chaffee, Ark., for basic training.

MINE CHOICE—Northern coal operators, in a move to combat John L. Lewis' "divide and conquer" strategy, plan to name a single negotiator for the soft coal industry. Harry M. Moses, above, president of the H. C. Frick Coal Co., has been offered the job and is considering it. Northern operators' spokesman stressed the fact that the new negotiator would in no sense be a "czar."

BUMPER CROP GETS A BOOST—This new trailer lift, installed at a 40,000-bushel grain elevator in St. Mary's, Kan., picks up and dumps a 40-ton loaded trailer in 90 seconds. The 50-foot truck and trailer platform swings 33 feet through a 40-degree arc. The new "raise-the-truck" method is expected to relieve the bottleneck at grain elevators during harvesting of this year's bumper crop.
